

Hellenic Hustle

	hun	hot	haz	hea	hor	hed	har	hip	ham	hum	hon	huc	hol	hem	hic	haw
hep
hes
had hel
hol
hem
hic
haw
ham
hum
hon
huc
hor
hed
har
hip

The four fire gods of ancient Greece often hang out together in a grove of immortal trees for lunch. Each of them brings his own lunch with his favorite snack in a container that is his favorite color. They also all bring their pets to keep them company in the grove where each of them sits under his favorite type of tree.

- all of the pets are mammals
- the spiky pet eats the nuts that fall from his master's tree
- the long-eared pet eats the red berries from her master's tree
- the chariot driver ironically does not bring a horse, but his pet is the largest
- the god of hell is secure enough in his masculinity to carry a hot pink lunch box
- the brown-bagger likes to drink tea, and sweetens it with his favorite food
- the hickory lover's favorite color is another name for a nut
- the charioteer likes his favorite food in the form of jam
- the hearth guardian rides to lunch on her trusty steed
- the hunter green lunch box has a matching hunter green saddle
- the heather grey lunch box owner sits under the only coniferous tree
- the goddess eats pita with her favorite food beneath what she calls the "thornapple tree"

Α	Ι	Ρ
Β	Κ	Σ
Γ	Λ	Τ
Δ	Μ	Υ
Ε	Ν	Φ
Ζ	Ξ	Χ
Η	Ο	Ψ
Θ	Π	Ω

(jump down for solution)

